BERLIN 1948: - A vanquished urban of rubble - sliced into sections by way of the Allies, and set good again in the back of the Russian lines. A urban of previous women, black marketeers and sleazy cabarets in ruined cellars. In the British zone was once Squadron chief Michael Harrison, a conflict hero who had helped to bomb Berlin into fragments. He hated the Nazis who had killed his sister and her children. yet the following he was, doing his most sensible to make sure that nutrition and gas used to be one way or the other introduced in to save lots of the surviving Berliners. In the Russian zone used to be The Pathfinder younger Lili Leicht, German, middle-class daughter of a college professor and now residing within the ruins of her former home, attempting to hinder her grandfather and more youthful brothers from loss of life of malnutrition. Her mom have been killed through British bombers. As the tensions within the smouldering urban grew worse, so Michael and Lili slowly fell in love. It was once a love that surmounted all of the prejudices and hatreds of warfare and provided a wish of knowing for the future.
